Conway Sheild is Of Counsel in the Newport News office, where he brings extensive experience to the firm's Real Estate Strategies practice group and Commercial section. He has practiced law for over 50 years, specializing in commercial banking, business transactions, and real estate law. Conway's expertise spans representing purchasers, sellers, automobile dealers, real estate companies, museums, utility companies, industrial development authorities, banks, and mortgagees. He has prepared and reviewed legal documentation involving development, finance, tax, choice of entity, real estate, environmental, and regulatory considerations. He has also represented title insurance companies, as well as owners and lending institutions in residential and commercial real estate development.

Conway's commitment to civic and charitable organizations is evident through his service on museum, bank, hospital, municipal, and professional boards, including the Virginia Bar Association and the Virginia State Bar.
